harbors, without a liceose, or after the expiration of the period camed in the last ficense granted, they provide that the vessel, with her tackle, etc., shall be forfeited. It is not known that any condomnations have been made under them staintes. Should the authorities of Canada attempt to enforce them, it will become my duty to take such steps as may be necessary to protect the rights of the United States.

It has been claimed by Her Majesty's officers that the flahing vessels of the United States have no right to enter the open ports of the British Possessions in North America, except for the purpose of shelter and repairing damages, of purchasing food and obtaining news; that they have no right to enter the British Custom Hones, or to trade except in the purchase of wood and water; and that they must depart within twenty-four hours after notice to leave. It is not known that any acture of fishing vessels carrying the flag of the United States has been made undor the claim. So far as the claim is founded on the alleged construction of the Consention of ISIS, it cannot be acquiesced in by the United States. It is hoped that it will not be insisted on by Her Majesty's Government.

During the Conferences which preceded the negotiation of the Convention of ISIS, the Beltish Conmissioners proposed to expressly excide the fishermen of the United States toom the privilege of carrying on trade with any of His Brittanic Majesty's anbjects residing within the limits assigned for their new, and also that it should not be hawful for the vessels of the United States engaged in such fishery, to have on board any goods, wares or merchandise, which shall contravene this regulation, may be seized, condumned and confiscated, with her cargo. This proposition which is identical with the construction put on the language of the Convention, was wmphatically rejected by the American Commissioners, and thereupon was absorded by the British Plenipotentiaries, and Article 1, as it stands in the comiration put on the language of the C enter the waters of the United States.

FREE NAVIGATION OF THE ST. LAWRENCE.

A little unifricually disposition has been manifested on the part of Canada, in the maintenance of a claim of the right to exclude the citizers of the United States from the navigation of the St. Lawrence. This river constitutes a natural outlet to the occan for eight States, with an aggregate population of 17,600,000 inhabitants, and with an aggregate tonnage of 661,367 tons upon the waters which discharge into it. The toreign commerce of their ports on these waters is open to British competition and the major part of it is done in British bottoms. If American seamen be excluded from the natural avenue to the occan, the monopoly of the direct commerce of the Lake ports with the Atlantic would be in foreign hands. Their vessels on transatiantic voyages, having access to our Lake ports, which would be desided to American vessels on similar voyages. To state such a proposition is to refute its justice. During the Administration of Mr. John Quincy Adams, Mr. Clay unquestionably demonstrated the natural right of the citizens of the United States to the navigation of this river, claiming the Act of Congress of Vienna upon the Rhine and other rivers, in which all nations shared; the judgment of European juritations which a navigable river passes, have a natural right to enjoy the navigation of that river to and into the sed, even though passing through the territory of another Power. This right does not exclude the cocqual right of the sovereign of passing the territory of another Power. This right does not exclude the coronal right of the sovereign of passing the territory of another Power. This right does not exclude the coronal right of the sovereign of passing the territory of another Power. This right does not exclude the coronal right of the sovereign of passing the territory of another Power. This right does not exclude the coronal right of the sovereign of passing the territory of another power. This should be framed in a liberal sp found in practice more advantageous to arrange those regulations by mutual agreement. The United States are ready to make any reasonable arrangement as to the practice of the St. Lawrence, which may be suggested by Great Britain. If the claim made by Mr. Clay was just when the population of the States bodering on the shores of the lakes was only 3.420,000, it now derives greater notice and equity from the increased population, wealth, production and tomage of the States on the Canadan frontier.

On the ground that she possessed a small domain, in which the Mississippi took its rise, she Insisted on this right to navigate the entire volume of its water. On the ground that she possesses both banks of the St. Lawrence, where it desembogues itself into the sea, she deales the United States the right of navigation through about one-half the waters of Lake Outsrio, flaron and Superior, and the whole of Lake Michigan, through which the river flows, though they are the property of the United States.

whole of Lake Michigan, through which the river flows, though they are the property of the United States.

The whole nation is interested in securing cheep transportation from the agricultural States of the West to the Atlantic seaboard. To the citizens of the States, it secures a greater return for the produce of the lands tilled by them.

Since Mr. Clay advanced his argument in behalf of our right, the principle for which he contended, has been frequently and by various nations recognized by law or by treaty, and has been extended to several other great rivers. By the treaty concluded at Mayence in 1851, the Rhine was declared free from the pollut where it is first navigated into the sen. By the convention between Spain and Portogal, concluded in 1853, the navigation of the Duoro throughout its whole extent, was made free for the authorits of both crowns. In 1853, the Arguntine Confederation, by freaty, threw open the free navigation of the Paran and Uraguay to the merchant vessels of all nations. In 1856, the Crimean war was closed by a treaty which provided for the free navigation of the Danube. In 1856, the Crimean war was closed by a treaty which provided for the free navigation of the Danube. In 1856, the Crimean war was closed by a freaty which provided for the Paran and Uraguay to the merchant vessels of all nations. In 1856, the Crimean war was closed by a freaty which provided for the Paran was made free by freaty; and in December, 1966, the Emperor of Brazil, by imperial decree, declared the Amazon to be open to all, to the frontier of Brazil to the merchant ships of all nations. The greatest living British authorities on this subject, asserting the abstract right of the British claim, say it werms difficult to deny that Great Britain may ground her refusal upon atrict law, but it is equally difficult to depute the formation of the Massiesippic.

It is hoped the Government of Great Britale will asserted landing of the Britain claim, and the secondact with respect to the navigation of the St. Lawrenc

It is hoped the Government of Great Britain will see the justice of abandoning the narrow and in-consistent claim to which her Canadian provinces have orged her adherence.

Our depressed commerce is a satject to which I called jour special attention at the last session of Congress. I suggested that it will, in fature, have to look more to the countries south of us, and to China and Japen for its markets. Our representatives to all these Governments have exerted their influence to encourage trade between the United States and the countries to which they are accredited; but the fact crists that the carrying is done almost entirely in foreign bottoms, and while this state of affairs exists, we cannot control our due share of the commerce of the Norich. That between the Pacific States and China and Japan is about all the carrying trade now conducted by American vessels. I would recommend a liberal policy towards that line of American steamers, one that will have its success and its increased usefulness. The cost of building from vessels—the only ones that can compete with foreign ships in the carrying trade,—is so much greater in the Pacific States has be foreign countries, that without some assistance from the Government they can not be accreasibly built here. There will be accreal propositions had be at some expense to the National Transary. I hope such encouragement will be given as will revive a merican shipping on the high sens, and American shiping on the high sens, and American shiping on the high sens, and American ship suiting at home.
